The former is composed of nasturtium, convolvulus, roses, and other flowers; the latter of three separate groups of various flowers-- two groups on the top, and one larger one sideways underneath. Below each of the three groups is lettering, which varies somewhat, and may be in small type. On the largest outside print, on the right, rather high up, is, in two lines, very small, G. Baxter, patentee, ii, Northampton Square. These outside prints are also found with a lace-like background of different patterns. Printed, in many cases, on the largest, in gold, or other coloured inks, is, on the top, The Queen s Floral needle boxes ; and below the group, also in type, is Illustrated by G. Baxter, patentee of oil colour printing. Originally sold:...
